About Level 5 Research

Level 5 Research (Level 5) is operated by former Wall Street Capital Markets executives. The Level 5 management has over 15 years of experience in institutional equity sales and trading, research and investment banking. Level 5's corporate overviews are fact-based discussions of the target companies and their industries to allow the investment community to obtain a better and more accurate understanding of the business operations without the traditional Wall Street rating system. Our overviews are summaries of the company's business, industries and risks garnered through research we gather from the company and publicly available information we believe accurate. Level 5 seeks to highlight the essence of a company's business, services, and technologies, important to understanding the company and its value, allowing the investment community to utilize the overview as a tool in their investment decision making. More information on Level 5 policies is written in the Disclosures sections of our overviews. <http://levfive.com/about.html>
